Gloria

— John Rutter
Born in 1945, in London, England

Choral music has always held a position of great importance in British music. One would be hard pressed to name an English composer who has not written in this expressive medium. John Rutter, although also accomplished in other genres, is one of the most gifted living composers of choral music. He founded the Cambridge Singers, who have performed and recorded many of his works.

As Rutter’s career has taken him along a traditional path from choirboy to scholar, composer, and choirmaster, so his music follows the traditions of those who have previously followed the same path. In Rutter, one can hear Walton, Vaughan Williams, Britten and Stanford, but his music is uniquely Rutter. Of particular interest in his music is his attention to clarity of text, as expressed through melodies of surpassing beauty. Rhythmic activity is also prominent, especially in his music for choir and instrumental ensemble.
Rutter's Gloria is an early work, dating from 1974 when he was a professor at the University of Southampton. In the original score, the composer explained:

“Gloria was written as a concert work. It was commissioned by The Voices of Mel Olson, Omaha, Nebraska, and I directed the first performance on the occasion of my first visit to the United States in May 1974. The Latin text, drawn from the Ordinary of the Mass, is a centuries-old challenge to the composer: exalted, devotional and jubilant by turns. My setting, which is based mainly on one of the Gregorian chants associated with the text, divides into three movements roughly corresponding to traditional symphonic structure. The accompaniment is for brass ensemble with timpani, percussion and organ - a combination which in the outer movements makes quite a joyful noise unto the Lord, but which is used more softly and introspectively in the middle movement.”

Rutter later rescored the accompaniment for the even more joyful noise of full orchestra.

Cast in three movements, the text is the traditional Gloria section from the Ordinary of the Roman Catholic Mass.

Opening with a regal outburst, complete with lively syncopations in the orchestra, the short introduction gives way to a jubilant choral entry. A legato section follows on the words "Et in terra pax..." (“And on earth peace ...”) with the chorus singing conjunct lines as the accompaniment recalls the repeated rhythms of the opening. Intensity builds as hints of the introductory material appear layered one atop the other. A short syncopation ends the movement.

Gloria in excelsis Deo.  Glory to God in the highest.
Et in terra pac hominibus bonae voluntatis. And on earth peace to men of good will.
Laudamus te. We praise Thee.
Benedicimus te. We bless Thee.
Adoramus te. We worship Thee.
Glorificamus te. We glorify Thee.
Gratiam agimus tibi propter magnam gloriam tuam We give Thee thanks for Thy great glory,

Suite from Bedford: The Town They Left Behind

– Charles Barnett

For the past twenty-five years, Charles Barnett has been an exciting composer of music for film, television, and the concert hall. With over four hundred works to his credit, he has won many awards, including the Jerry Goldsmith Award at the 2004 Rome International Film Festival for his score to Paper Clips, the Cine Golden Eagle for National Geographic’s Tibet’s Hidden Kingdom, and a Peer Award for The Discovery Channel’s Raising the Mammoth. On television, Barnett’s music has been heard on Saturday Night Live, The Cosby Show, Third Rock from the Sun, and Weeds. He has been nominated for three Emmy awards.

He discussed the work on this program in a recent correspondence:

“In early 2009 I wrote the score to a film called ‘Bedford, The Town They Left Behind’. The film tells the story of the “Bedford boys,” the young men from Company A who left Bedford, Virginia, trained in England, and were in the first wave in the Normandy invasion at Omaha Beach. When Ulysses James first heard excerpts from this score he said “I want to play this.” Other than somewhat flattered, I am not sure how I felt about this proposition. In my world of music composition, I tend to keep my professional interests rather separated. My world of concert music doesn’t cross over into my world of film-scoring very often. Maybe this is the year for all that to change?

“I agreed to re-structure a number of the Bedford film cues into a suite for orchestra. It seemed to be a simple task. But when I actually sat down to cobble the various pieces together I found that without the visual, i.e.
the film, to hold it all together, it sounded like a bunch of disconnect melodies held together only by the slender thread of the same orchestration. I realized that what was missing from this music was the story. And for that I needed help.

“Joe Fab is the director of Bedford, The Town They Left Behind. It was not until I called him about collaborating on this project that it all became interesting. He suggested that we narrow our focus to the love story between Ivyllyn and John Schenk. Theirs is the most poignant story in the film. Ivyllyn and John were married for eight days before John was shipped off to England. He died on D-Day. They never saw each other after their honeymoon. They wrote each other every day for two years and all their letters survived. And out of those letters Joe was able to tell their unique story, in their own words. Once the story became clear, so did the music.

“There were, of course, unforeseen difficulties in marrying the spoken word with the music.

Trying to figure out which music plays under dialog and which music will stand on its own.
Which cues from the film would make workable concert music?
Expanding the original orchestration to meet the requirements of the full Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic.
Finding actors who would be able to become these two lovers who are separated by sixty years; she an 85 year old woman and he a perpetual twenty-four year old young man.

“I hope this collaboration is successful in presenting both the heartache of a love cut short and the acceptance of the fact that life goes on.”

Symphony No. 5 in D Minor, Op. 107 (“Reformation”)
– Felix Mendelssohn
Born February 3, 1809, in Hamburg, Germany
Died November 4, 1847, in Leipzig, Germany

Felix Mendelssohn showed talent at a young age, so his wealthy father invested in the best music teachers available for Felix and his musically gifted sister Fanny (who composed even after she was married, despite the social expectations of the time). Young Felix regularly heard his music performed by the private orchestra that played in the Mendelssohn’s Berlin home every Sunday. This invaluable advantage allowed the composer to develop musical identity and aptness for orchestration before his age reached double digits. Thirteen early “string symphonies” date from this period – all written before he composed his first numbered symphony at the age of fifteen.

To complicate matters further, the symphonies we know today as numbers one through five are numbered in order of publication, not of composition. Actually these works were composed in the following order – No. 1 (1824), No. 5 “Reformation” (1830), No. 4 “Italian” (1833), No. 2 “Lobgesang” (1840), and No. 3 “Scottish” (1842).

In the case of the “Reformation” Symphony, it is not difficult to understand its delay in publication. It was composed for a special occasion, the 300th anniversary of the Augsburg Confession of 1530 – the document that defined the principles of Lutheranism and launched the Protestant Reformation. Because of this association, publishers felt that the work would not have universal appeal, especially with Mendelssohn’s original unwieldy title, Symphony for the Celebration of a Religious Revolution. Later shortened to “Reformation,” the work was not published until 1868 – twenty-one years after Mendelssohn’s death. The troublesome nickname is reflected in Mendelssohn’s music by his use of two themes that reflect the Lutheran heritage.

The work begins with a slow introduction, which closes with the first of Mendelssohn’s Lutheran themes – the famous Dresden Amen, appearing here as a whisper in the high register of the strings. A bold allegro con fuoco comprises the main body of this agitated movement, but the Dresden Amen returns to signal the beginning of the recapitulation. Mendelssohn’s second movement is a lively scherzo, usually found as the third movement in symphonies of this period, which includes a delightful oboe duct in the trio section. The third movement is a prayerful andante that serves as an introduction to the potent finale. Woodwinds begin the final movement with a lush harmonization of the famous Lutheran hymn, Ein feste Burg ist unser Gott (A Mighty Fortress is our God). As the movement progresses through many tempo changes, Mendelssohn weaves threads from the hymn together with new themes. In its final measures, the hymn tune recurs with a grand and powerful treatment for full orchestra.

Dr. Mark Whitmire is Director of the NOVA Community Chorus and Professor of Music at Northern Virginia Community College. He has conducted choirs throughout the region, including performances at The National Theater, The Kennedy Center and Washington National Cathedral. In 2003 he was conductor-in-residence at Gloucester Cathedral; in 2006 he returned to England to direct choirs at Westminster Abbey and Canterbury Cathedral. Dr. Whitmire has received numerous grants and awards, including a scholarship for post-graduate studies at the Britten-Pears School in England (where he studied with Sir Peter Pears), and a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities for research and writing on the music of Benjamin Britten. In 1999 he was named “Outstanding Faculty of the Year” by the college, and in 2004 he was awarded the “President's Sabbatical,” the highest honor given by the college. Dr. Whitmire attended Abilene Christian University, the University of Texas, and the University of Maryland, where he received the Doctor of Musical Arts degree. He also serves as Adjunct Professor of Music and Liturgy at Virginia Theological Seminary and Music Director at St. James's Church, Richmond.

The NOVA Community Chorus, an eighty-voice ensemble directed by Dr. Mark Whitmire, combines singers from the NVCC Music Program and the surrounding community. The chorus has distinguished itself both locally and internationally. It performs regularly at the Schlesinger Center with the Alexandria Campus Band, the Alexandria Symphony, and the Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic. Special engagements in recent years have included Carnegie Hall, the Lincoln Center, and the National Theater. The chorus toured Spain and performed at the 1992 World's Fair in Seville. Members of the choir sang at Gloucester Cathedral in 2003 and returned to England in 2006 to sing at Westminster Abbey and Canterbury Cathedral.

Music Director/Conductor Ulysses S. James is a former trombonist who studied in Boston and at Tanglewood with William Gibson, principal trombonist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He graduated in 1958 with honors in music from Brown University. After a 20 year career as a surface warfare Naval Officer, followed by a second career as an organization and management development consultant, he became the music director and conductor in what is now Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic Association in 1985.

In 1985, Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic was a small, mostly amateur group of about 20 neighborhood string players. It now has over 60 members, 60% or more of whom are either professional or semi-professional musicians. It performs each of its five season concerts in the City of Alexandria and the District of Columbia. In 1984, Washington Metropolitan Youth Orchestra was a small non-auditioned group of string players from the Mount Vernon area. It now has 60 auditioned members who come from the entire metropolitan area. It is the Orchestra in Residence at Episcopal High School in the City of Alexandria.

Mr. James initiated a summer chamber music series at The Lyceum in Old Town, Alexandria. The series will celebrate its twentieth consecutive year next summer. Through his efforts and those of the Board, the Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic Association (WMPA) sponsors two annual events:

- A regional composition competition, which selects three semifinalists whose works are performed and judged by orchestra members, audience, Board and the Music Director. Ultimately, they select a grand prize winner whose reward is the performance of two of their major works by the Philharmonic.
- An annual master class for young musicians, 18 and younger with some of the metropolitan area’s finest professional musicians.

Mr. James is known for his innovative programming and performance of new, accessible works. He made his Kennedy Center Concert Hall and Carnegie Hall conducting debut in 1990. In 1998 he made his Lincoln Center, Avery Fisher Hall debut, and in 2008, his Strathmore Concert Hall, MD debut. He has appeared frequently at the Kennedy Center’s Terrace Theater and Concert Hall.

He was awarded “2002 Mount Vernon District Citizen of the Year” by the Mount Vernon Council of Citizens' Associations. In May, 2002, he was selected as Virginia’s Region 4 (Alexandria) Honored Mentor for May the Month of Children (7th-12th Grade).

Mission
The mission of Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic Association ("WMPA") is to inspire and instill a lifelong passion for the performance of classical music in artists and audience through stimulating concerts, culturally diverse collaborations, and educational outreach. This mission is based on the following values: fostering a commitment to music-making among professional, semi-professional, and student musicians; diversity of programming, performers, administration, and audience; inclusiveness; innovation of performance and outreach; honesty and fairness; and accountability.

Major Programs
Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic ("WMP") WMP is an auditioned 65-70 person orchestra of musicians performing at a professional or semi-professional level. The orchestra performs five regular season concerts in the City of Alexandria at Bishop Ireton High School and in Washington, DC at The Church of the Epiphany. In addition, WMP is regularly invited to participate in special events with community organizations such as the NOVA Community Chorus and the Lorton Workhouse Arts Center.

Washington Metropolitan Youth Orchestra ("WMYO") WMYO is an auditioned 60 person orchestra. The orchestra normally performs five regular season concerts in the City of Alexandria, four at Episcopal H.S.’s Pendleton Hall (the school’s orchestra in residence), and one at the George Washington National Masonic Memorial.

Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic Association Summer Chamber Music Series From mid-June to September, WMPA sponsors eleven free Sunday afternoon chamber music concerts presented at Old Town Alexandria’s The Lyceum. Next summer will mark the Series’ twentieth consecutive year.

Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic Association Annual Master Class WMPA’s Master Class is a Washington metropolitan area wide opportunity for selected musicians 18 years old and younger to work with the area’s finest professional musicians.

Washington Metropolitan Philharmonic Composition Competition WMPA’s Composition Competition is for composers living in the Mid-Atlantic States. Three finalists are selected by a special panel. WMP then performs a 10 minute composition by each finalist during a regular season concert. A final winner is selected by audience, Board and WMP members. The overall winner has the opportunity to have two major works performed by WMP in the following concert season.

Washington Metropolitan Concert Orchestra ("WMCO") WMCO is string ensemble for young musicians from grades 6-8. The ensemble focuses on those skills that are needed to perform complex music in a more advanced orchestral group such as WMYO.
