

Kathy Kessler Price, M.M., Ph.D.
Presents

Overcoming the Effects of Aging and Hormonal Changes on the Singing Voice

Dr. Price will discuss the results of her research into the female voice lifespan with emphasis on menopausal transitions.

- ❖ Vocal Aging: What it is and how it affects singers (men and women)
- ❖ Hormones and the Voice: Vocal quality effects; how you can manage vocal change

Saturday, February 19, 2011
3:00 pm

Northern Virginia Community College
Tyler Building, Room AT130
3001 North Beauregard Street
Alexandria, VA 22311-5097

No admission charge
Reception following presentation

From the South, Capital Beltway

- Take I-395 North to Exit 4 (Seminary Road W.)
- Go west on Seminary Road for three traffic lights
- Turn right on Beauregard Street
- Take the second left into the college (look for sign)
- Park in garage across from Schlesinger Center (~$3)
- Tyler Building is to left and behind Schlesinger Ctr

From the North, Arlington and D.C.

- _ Take I-395 South to Exit 5 (King Street West)
- _ Turn left onto Beauregard Street
- _ Turn right into the college (look for sign)
- _ Park in garage across from Schlesinger Center (~$3)
- _ Tyler Building is to left and behind Schlesinger Center

Kathy Kessler Price has a Masters of Music in voice performance and a Ph.D. in vocal pedagogy. Her primary research is in the female voice lifespan with an emphasis on improving, retaining, and regaining vocal quality due to aging, injury, and hormonal change. She teaches applied voice and vocal pedagogy at The University of Kansas, and has worked with clinical vocal rehabilitation at the KU Medical Center. Dr. Price maintains voice studios in Kansas City and McLean, VA.